Introduction to Team Coaching

The International Coaching Federation (ICF) has recognized the growing importance of coaching teams, beyond one-to-one coaching. In the words of ICF:

“Team coaching is growing rapidly. Team coaching is an experience that allows a team to work towards sustainable results and ongoing development. It is becoming an increasingly important intervention in corporate environments as high team performance requires aligning toward goals, remaining innovative, and adapting quickly to internal and external changes”.

In November 2020, ICF rolled out a set of Team Coaching Competencies. ICF also acknowledged the complexity of team coaching:

“Because team coaching is multi-faceted, team coaches must also have a significantly broader knowledge base when working with teams than with individuals. They need to have an understanding of how to identify and resolve conflict, recognize power dynamics within the team, understand what is required for high performing teams, know how to build team cohesion, develop rules and norms, encourage participation and contribution by all, and promote team autonomy and sustainability”.

Start your journey to become a SHARED LEADERSHIP TEAM COACH!

The Shared Leadership Disciplines® in TCCP® has been helpful to me in continuously shaping the skills and competencies of our leaders in EDC. Together with my team, we have introduced fundamental concepts I learned from TCCP® and this became part of our leadership tool in dealing with organizational concerns and engaging employees.

As a new coach, the tools and techniques of TCCP® help build my coaching competencies. What I really appreciate most is TCCP®'s learning approach. Other coaching programs will provide you the fundamental concept and a few workshops to apply the skills. With TCCP, they focus on the skills development. They use education, exposure and immersion as a technique to hone the coaching competency. The education part is discussing the concept, mini lectures are provided with sharing of experiences to better understand the concept. The exposure is to witness how it is done as an observer. The immersion is the actual doing of the technique and coupled with feedback and suggestions not only from one coach but several coaches who can share best practice.

The best part is you are not alone during the start-up experience. Coaching partners and groups are created and formed to help in the coaching practice. The coaching community of TCCP® is also very active – sharing tips, leads, additional learning and providing support in the coaching journey, which gives one a needed push of confidence through sharing feedback and appreciation.

I am very thankful for taking the coaching plunge with TCCP®. We are more than a community. At TCCP® we are family, ready to help anyone to succeed in this chosen field.

I am passionate about teams because I believe that as organizations transform to become more agile, they will rely heavily on high performing teams. I consider team coaching as a rich addition to my existing skillset.

My team coaching journey has been a fulfilling one. I have learned from my team coaching application project that establishing trust with the team leader is critical before plunging into team coaching. It is important that I have the opportunity to regularly exchange ideas and share experiences with my colleagues in the LIM community.

To my classmates, our face-to-face interactions have been truly magical because of the abundance of learning insights we produced together.

Continuous learning and improving from what I was yesterday has always been my mantra.

LIM's Shared Leadership TCCP® started my serious coaching journey. I have known many tools, processes and concepts before but attending the program opened more possibilities to use and integrate these tools to address challenges an individual, a team or an organization faces. The numerous practice sessions inside and outside the class honed my listening and questioning skills further as these are very important in the coaching practice. As I delved more into the program, I got to know myself better.

I sincerely appreciate the support of LIM's Shared Leadership TCCP® project team and for making the program very experiential with the appropriate environment for learning. The openness and sharing of my fellow participants further enhanced the program.

The Team Coaching Certification Program® (TCCP®) from Leadership in Motion (LIM) has been nothing short of transformative and magical. The program's simplicity coupled with impactful facilitation guided me through a journey that not only enhanced my coaching skills but also provided deep insights into effective team dynamics. With the support of LIM's exceptional coaches, I felt empowered to apply what I learned immediately.

Delivering sessions using Team Coaching to several organizations, I witnessed firsthand the remarkable positive response from both teams and business owners. TCCP® equips you with practical tools and insights that make a tangible difference in team performance, organizational success, and long-term, sustained growth. I wholeheartedly recommend TCCP® to anyone looking to make a meaningful impact in their coaching practice and beyond.

The power of Pause in our life, gentle but effective team interventions, and the coaching of the person and not of a specific problem are 3 of the most profound things that I have learned through the Team Coaching Certification Program® (TCCP®) of Leadership in Motion.

Because of the immense support and guidance provided to me and our team in Ayala Foundation by the TCCP® coaches, we now feel truly empowered to assist people to accept and express who they are, grow more as a professional, and become better as human beings.

The important transformational skills that I learned through this program has immensely been life changing and I hope more professionals, especially those working for and with other people, could join TCCP® in the future.

I've had the privilege of receiving formal coaching many years ago while I was a corporate executive. The insights & self-awareness I gained from coaching were material in my maturing process as a leader. Realizing the benefits of coaching, I've always wanted to become a coach myself, so I can also help others.

My formal coaching journey started with my enrolment in LIM's TCCP® which taught me the skills to do, not just one-on-one coaching, but also team coaching using the Shared Leadership Discipline. The latter is particularly interesting to me because I know that high-performance teams don't happen by chance. They are intentional, with team coaching as an enabler.

The concepts I learned from the course were not totally new to me, but the way they were taught to the class was pragmatic, integrated and action reflection-oriented so you really get to absorb them. The course provided plenty of opportunities for us to practice the skills, with rich feedback coming from not only the LIM coaches but also other participants. Today, we continue to learn from each other as a community of coaches, all eager to make a difference in the world through coaching.

After completing the Shared Leadership TCCP®, I was able to further enhance my ability to be more inclusive during team coaching sessions through the SRWR framework. My listening skills also improved as a result of learning and applying the 5Cs in the Shared Leadership Disciplines®. More importantly, being able to ask the right questions during a coaching session allows my internal clients to have more ownership in dealing with their challenges as they reflect and create their own ideas and action plans. Following up on the action plans also became a more focused conversation. Kudos to LIM for this certification program!

Investing in this program has been one of the most worthwhile things I've done for myself.

For the longest time I have been provided with corporate trainings from the companies I have joined in my career. But this I would say provided me with the most concepts, principles and tools to become an advocate of Shared Leadership.

Learning Team Coaching made me understand how to effectively guide my team to navigate through challenges and how we can learn from each other.

The biggest bonus comes from meeting people outside my usual circle and learn with these beautiful individuals.
